Are You Looking for Lunch Catering Services for Corporate Events?

There are many different options to choose from when looking for catering services for corporate events. It can be difficult to know how to choose the right caterer to fit your needs. Here are some things to consider when choosing what catering service to go with.

Quality of Food:

Prices vary from caterer to caterer. Many times, one chooses a catering company based only on price. This can be deceiving. Do they use processed meats, or slices of fresh roasted meat? Do they use ready-made sauces, or fresh sauces without the preservatives? If you are trying a caterer for the first time, ask if they offer any sort of free sample. Companies with a superior quality of food can nothing but benefit from having people try their food.

Extra Charges:

When looking at different companies to choose from, be aware of hidden costs. Is there a cancellation fee? Are different drink options extra? What do they charge for delivery to your area? One company, Ingallinaâ€™s Box Lunch, offer free delivery throughout most of the Greater Seattle area, from Everett to Tacoma, and East to Issaquah. This can greatly save on the total bill, especially for corporate events located a distance from the downtown area.

Ease of Ordering:

The ability to accommodate your needs vary from company to company. How far in advance must you place your order? How late can they take last minute add-ons? Are you able to make substitutions? It is also a good idea to look into what forms of payment are accepted. Many catering companies will take company checks, credit cards, and some will even set up corporate billing.

Customer Service:

There is always a benefit to choosing a company that serves your needs and goes the extra mile for you. What happens if you DO get a last minute request after their cut off time? Or have a special guest who has specific requirements? Perhaps your credit card declines. Do they go the extra mile to get you your food anyways? One saves a lot of time and money by choosing a company that is able to handle whatever comes their way without it becoming a problem.

There are a lot of things to consider when choosing the right catering company. One should not look only at the price on the menu, but at the whole package of what is being offered. Whether you are looking for party platters, box lunches, or corporate gift baskets, a catering company should offer not only the actual product, but the ease and peace of mind of knowing that all of your catering needs are taken care of so your focus can remain on your meeting or event.
