There's a common problem for trucks making deliveries to Loading Bays the length and breadth of the country. There's often a difference in height between the bed of the trailer and the loading platform they reverse up to. This problem is often overcome with the use of Dock Levellers.

Basically a dock leveler is a mechanical ramp that lifts and lowers on demand when trailers back up to docking areas. Dock Levellers are fitted to Loading Bays and they can be manually or mechanically lifted to the exact height of the trailer floor. Once the Dock Levellers are raised goods can quickly be loaded or unloaded from the vehicle that is parked at the loading bay.

Height differences are no longer a problem if specialist equipment has been fitted to loading bays like easy to use Dock Levellers.

Want to improve the facilities at your Loading Bays to speed up delivery processes? Fit Dock Levellers and watch as these mechanical wonders revolutionise your current loading procedures.

Dock Levellers are easy to use features that only take minutes to manually or hydraulically raise or lower into position. Once they are level with the trailer floor the Dock Levellers provide a sturdy platform for fork lifts to trundle over.

Some Dock Levellers come with telescopic lips that extend into the rear of the trailer. This provides the user with total stability ensuring the transportation of goods from Loading Bays to trailers is a smooth and safe operation.

Busy warehouse and distribution centres deal with numerous deliveries and collections on a daily basis. The savvy ones have Dock Levellers fitted to their Loading Bays because they realise the only way to keep up with demand is to have the latest resources fitted.
