Whether to go for a buy ATM or opt for an ATM replacement is a big debating issue among the various investors of ATM processing business. This ongoing debate is continuing for a very long time and perhaps will continue for long. Both the alternatives bring along with them a number of benefits and drawbacks. So, before anyone decides for which side to choose, it will beneficial for him to know about the pros and cons of both of them.

If you go for buy atm machines, the biggest return of it will be that the entire share of ATM processing business will go into your lap. But in case of only placing the machine, only a meager amount of the share will come to you. This is called shared transaction percentage by virtue of which you will be able to earn a small percentage of based on the surcharge fee per transaction. Based on the number of people using the ATM machine will vary your income. Thus if you go for placing an ATM machine, you should always hope that quite a lot of person using the ATM or your income may become paltry.

Now if you look into the drawbacks of buy atm machine, the initial start-up cost is undoubtedly the biggest of them. Installing a buy ATM machine does not only require the placing of the machine. It is just a scanty amount of the entire cost incurred. The making of the room, decorating it, maintaining the machine properly, keeping a fool-proof security system, loading or stocking of the cash should also be included in your list of expenses. But if you opt for just placing the machine, you need not worry about this at all. All the works mentioned above will be bore upon by the bank or the financial institution that is creating the ATM machine. Even the maintenance part is looked after by them.
