Buying Your First Car by Marcusowen

Article published on December 3rd 2011 | Business

If youâ€™re looking to buy your first car from Shelleyâ€™s Auto Sales, there are a few things youâ€™re g want to know before spending any money. When you first walk onto the lot, youâ€™ll see a lot of temptation: Big trucks, fast cars and shiny rides. But, for your first car, thereâ€™s something youâ€™re go to want to prioritize over all else.

Ease of Maintenance

When it comes to learning how to care for your car, you donâ€™t need to become an expert, but you should at least have a working knowledge of how and when to change your spark plugs, your oil and keep your tires rotated. All of this can be made a lot easier to learn right off the bat with a car that is smaller, modest and wonâ€™t break down too often. Luckily, these cars are usually pretty cheap, too.

Safe to Drive

A car that is safe to drive is always preferable, but this is doubly true when you are a new driver or driving the first car youâ€™ve owned yourself. Not only is it just plain safer that way, it also looks good on your record if anything happens. If you chose a specific car exactly because it had such a reputation to be safe, that could be the thing that tilts the odds in your favor in an insurance dispute or in a court of law. Judges love to side against new drivers, and every little bit helps in proving to the world that youâ€™re a safe, responsible person when driving off the auto sales Belton, TX lot.

Affordability

Affordability comes down to much, much more than just the car or truck itself. Affordability also refers to insurance and fuel costs, as well as maintenance costs. The safer your car, the lower your insurance is likely to be, for instance. When youâ€™re a new driver, insurance companies are going to charge you more, especially if youâ€™re a teenager. The only way around this is in bits and pieces. You lower your insurance a little here by taking an advanced driving course, a little there by having anti-lock brakes put in, and so on. As for fuel efficiency, look for a newer car that gets great mileage, and then just keep your engine clean so that it will provide peak performance, ensuring that not a drop of gasoline is wasted.

Weâ€™ll be honest with you. When youâ€™re a new driver, the odds are stacked against you out on the road. Insurance companies want more money from you, the law is more likely to take the more experienced driverâ€™s side, and you generally donâ€™t have as much money to buy the car you want a get full coverage insurance on it right off the lot. That said, getting your first set of wheels can be a liberating and enjoyable experience if you only take the time to do a little research and make sure youâ€™re buying the right car or truck right up front. Feel free to ask the salespeople at Shelleyâ€™s Auto Sales any question you might have, and weâ€™ll be glad to help you find the car you need.
