Commonly Asked Inquiries Regarding Ways to Take Care of a Puppy

by Hugh Konkol

Article published on June 6th 2012 | Business

Having a new family pet-- particularly a cute pup-- can be an exciting experience, but the wellness and care of the latest member of your household have to be among your priorities. A young pup needs to be brought to a Salt Lake City animal clinic within a week of its adoption. Throughout the appointment, you should have your wits about you to make sure that you can ask appropriate questions about your pup's health needs.

Canines weren't labeled man's best friend for nothing. The unconditional love that a dog endows its ownersâ€”in addition to the commitment, the intelligence, and the faithfulnessâ€”could cheer up even the lowest of spirits and grant the owners a feeling of joy unparalleled by any other. Studies show that having these tail-waggers could provide owners numerous health-related benefitsâ€”from being more fit thanks to the regular walks, to reduced stress as a result of spending quality time together with a faithful buddy. Therefore, you should do everything you can to make sure that your new best friend will always be healthy.

How often should you take your dog to visit the vet?

As mentioned above, it's highly recommended that you take your new puppy to the animal clinic within the first 7 days since you took it home. The result of this consult would establish the special health requirements your puppy would need as well as how frequently you should bring it in for checkups. Generally, a dog in good condition would need to be checked twice a year, after being vaccinated.

What are the consequences of sterilization?

Veterinarians advise that a dog be neutered as soon as possible to prevent having unwanted offspring that can't be taken care of. Unless you want to have more puppies, you can check with your vet about neutering. Advantages include reduced aggression and less vulnerability to canine disorders.

How will I know if my puppy is not feeling well?

Knowing if your pet is sick is dependent upon how much you know your dog's personality. Abrupt personality changesâ€”like a usually energetic dog abruptly becoming slowâ€”could be an indication of an ailment. Urinary signs, such as whining while peeing, are also indicators that you have to take your pet to a Salt Lake City veterinarian.

Must I call the veterinarian?

Some dog owners think that they could just treat their pet by themselves. The veterinarian salt lake city dog owners endorse will advise you against this, as unguided treatments can cause more problems. Always call a veterinarian when you have concerns regarding your pet's well-being before doing anything.

Make certain that the vets in Utah you'll be going to have procedures for after-hours emergency situations that you can rely on. For additional information, you could log on to vetinfo.com/dog-health-questions.html or purina. co. nz/home/all + about + dogs/your + new + pet + dog/choosing + a + dog/the + advantages + of + owning + a + dog.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/commonly-asked-inquiries-regarding-ways-to-take-care-of-a-puppy.htm - Article Side

Hugh Konkol - About Author:
For more details, search a vets in Utah, a veterinarian salt lake city and a Salt Lake City veterinarian in Google.

Article Keywords:
salt lake city veterinarian, veterinarian salt lake city, vets in utah

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!