Did your phone make its way to the recycle phone bank?

by Karl Leone

Article published on August 22nd 2012 | Business

Or did it plainly end up in the landfill like hundreds and thousands of phones do every day? It is time you rethought the process of doing away with old phones. Throwing them away in the dustbin is not the only option.

You can donate, reuse, resell and refurbish the old phones and have your say in keeping the earth clean and green. So the next time you want to dispose of the old phone, all you got to do is to walk to the nearest recycle phone bank. Bringing a smile on Mother Natureâ€™s face is as easy as this. And what do they do with the old stuff that you drop in their kitty?

Well, they repair, refurbish, resell and reuse in any capacity that they can. Sometimes the old junk is as good to go as new one and fetches real good value to you. But other times, the case is way beyond salvaging and in that case they re-use the working or needed components and minimize the before, after and overall costs. In either case the recycle phone is win-win option for any party involved. No oneâ€™s got to lose anything here.

The recycling service provider will estimate the value that your phone, working or non-working can fetch. And the prices they offer are calculated after a thorough analysis of the market, the phone that you turn in and lots of other variants. So, the prices that they offer are one of the best in the market.

The recycle phone concept helps cut down the consistent and ever increasing demands on the resources to some extent. And every drop makes an ocean. If each one of us decides to participate in the recycle phone drive, there would be far too many drops and it really is easy with all time assistance throughout the processing, recovery, sales and distribution of used mobile phone stock.

It is easier to walk up to the dustbin and throw in the phone but ask your conscience if it is responsible on your part. The recycling service providers work with absolute integrity on every single piece that is turned in to them making sure that it is dealt away in the safest and secure manner ever.

The belief in reduce, reuse and recycle is cemented by the recycle phone idea. There is no reason why you should be contributing to the global e-waste when you could easily be contributing to the overall environmental management and get paid for it too. The choice of course, rests with you.

You can throw away your future and that of your children or you can help conserve it so that your children may also get to enjoy the bounty of resources that we have. And remember every single phone that gets recycled makes a difference. It would be good to see you walking up to the nearest recycle phone center. Let us all take our responsibility to the environment seriously and not make this earth a harbor of all our electronic wastes.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/did-your-phone-make-its-way-to-the-recycle-phone-bank.htm - Article Side

Karl Leone - About Author:
Karl Leone is an author of phonerecycle (www.phonerecycle.com.au), one of the best Website of Clothing alteration. She is writing articles on a visit here since long time.

Article Keywords:
recycle phone

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!