Article published on June 16th 2012 | Business

The Citroen DS is one model of car which is as cool now as it was when it was first made â€“ maybe even more so! The years have not been kind to several older types of car but that cannot be said for the likes of the Citroen Traction Avant and DS. Indeed you could argue that the French manufacturer has fared well as the years have gone by with many models from the 50s through to the 70s in particular being particularly sought after these days. The Citroen DS is one model which the company can look back on with pride...

For those of you who are unfamiliar with classic cars the Citroen DS is one of Citroenâ€™s most famous lines of vehicle. The model was launched in 1955 and remained in production in range of variations and incarnations up until 20 years later. The successor to the Citroen Traction Avant â€“ a monocoque design which was produced between 1934 and 1957 â€“ the release of the DS followed many years of research and development aimed at coming up with a car fit for the next generation. The Citroen DS was a groundbreaking car which was extremely popular; indeed many of its fans would say that it was a car which defined a generation.

The Citroen DS was pioneering to say the least, featuring technical innovations including a central hydro-pneumatic suspension system which was quite a departure from the independent wheel suspension mechanisms which were the accepted way of doing things in the industry at the time.

If you are currently the owner of a classic Citroen DS then you will need no convincing of what a great car they are. Distinctive and stylish bodywork as well as a modest four-cylinder engine which belied its acceleration, the car performed well in motorsports such as rally because of its supreme handling. Consequently the Citroen DS remains a popular model to this day with fans of classic cars.

If you are interested in buying a Citroen DS or any parts then you should visit Citroenclassics.co.uk. The firm is also a Citroen Traction Avant specialist.n

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/do-you-own-a-citroen-ds.htm - Article Side

Mary Porter - About Author:
A a Citroen DS from citroenclassics.co.uk is considered to be a highly desirable car as our vehicles are in pristine condition and function efficiently. Our top notch a Citroen Traction Avant products are irresistible.

Article Keywords:
Citroen DS, Citroen Traction

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!