E-governance is at its nascent stage in India with strong potential for growth in the future. The Information Technology (IT) industry is expected to be the major industry that stands to benefit. Government spending on IT is rapidly increasing which opens newer opportunities for the players in the IT space. It also provides growth prospects to various industries which are likely to benefit from the e-governance plan. The ongoing projects and the ones in the implementation stage are also set to offer greater exposure to the players in this space. Rise in demand for services and information by consumers across the nation has fostered the need for fast and smooth transfer of knowledge.
