Thanks to the latest innovations and advancements in technology, latest news India is made available to us at our doorstep via various sources of media such as television news channels, newspapers, internet, etc. Today, news has emerged as a strong power which influences people at a large scale. It is a very popular and the largest method of communication.

India today has acquired a lot of importance and attention all around the world thanks to the 2009 terror attacks in Mumbai. Everyone is keen on knowing about the current happenings and events of the nation. Indians especially are fervent in getting India news updates. There is a general awakening created in the minds of people through news. If an individual doesn't have time to update himself with the details of the event, he or she can always refer to news headlines which are featured as breaking news India and get a brief idea about the events.

The latest news India includes topics of political issues, current affairs, entertainment news as well. The India news updates also throw a light on topics of social evils prevalent in the society such as dowry, illiteracy, population, pollution, child sexual abuse, etc. which creates general awakening among the people. You can raise your voice against or in support of any event(s) and make your views count.

However a lot of people are glued to the television all the time mostly for entertainment news and sports news. They are enthusiastic about the latest Bollywood gupshup and are very much interested in knowing about the events that are happening in the lives of Bollywood stars and sportspersons. Thus, taking the advantage of this, the news channels feature even the most unwanted and baseless news as breaking news India and try to increase the TRP of their news channels. This, however, misguides the people.

Media should realize that they should not play with the emotions of the people as people get easily attracted by the lavish and luxurious lifestyle similar to that of the movie stars and wish to lead the same kind of life. Instead more focus should be laid on the problems of our Indian society and the gap between rural and urban areas should be narrowed. Thus, it is very important for the news industry to give importance to the right kind of news for the betterment of the nation and the people living in it.
