You will realize this when you shop around with the missus, especially with the kids in tow. Suddenly, you're not just looking at the model, mileage, and cost anymore. They have taken the backseat to other factors because, if nothing else, you want the best for your family. Below are the features you should consider in looking for your family car.

Seating Capacity

Does everyone, including the youngest squirt, fit in comfortably? The larger the seating capacity of the car, the better choice it is. A five-seater is enough for your 2 kids, while a seven-seater will let you take your parents, visiting relatives, or your kid's friends to a football practice. It is a plus if the car has adjustable seats for the kids. See if the car allows multiple seating combinations, and if seats can be flexibly converted to storage space.

Convenience

Driving with kids makes you aware of the convenience provide by your car. Convenience features you should look out for include dual zone automatic climate control, drink holders, tinted windows, sunshades, a keyless entry, and a car with a remote start. Bring your kids when checking out the car.

Storage

Check the storage capacity of the car. Are the compartments spacious enough to include the toys, books, or the kids' sports gear? The car's storage space should be enough to pack in luggage, food baskets, and other bulky things, on family outings, weekend get-aways, and out of town trips. The Subaru Edmonton car dealerships have offer storage option accessories like a roof luggage rack.

Safety

Safety features should be a premium in the family car. Side airbags, seatbelts, head restraints, and Electronic Stability Control are standard. It is even helpful if the car has a seatbelt icon on the instrument panel that helps you monitor who's buckled up or not. Features such as an all-wheel drive, GPS navigation system, rear cameras, and sliding doors are very helpful with children safety in mind. A family-friendly car like the Subaru Tribeca 2012 offers most of these and more, so be sure to check with Subaru dealers in Edmonton.

Entertainment

This is probably the biggest feature your kids want to have in a car. A rear-seat dvd entertainment system allows your kids to watch cartoons, movies, play video games, or listen to music. Subaru dealers in Edmonton can show you the available entertainment options to keep restless passengers occupied during long trips. See if the car also has headphone features that allow you to listen to your own music.
