Property management is becoming more popular as people are finding homes to purchase as an investment for an affordable price. If you do not want to hire an outside firm to manage your investment properties, you can do the job yourself for a fraction of the cost. Using online resources is the best way to download the documents you need including free lease agreements.

Free lease agreements are documents used to create a contract between a tenant and the property owner. Many specify certain rules and regulations including the term of the lease and how much the rent will be each month. The agreement will also state where the property is located and the number of people who will be living in the home. This is important information for a property manager in the event there is a problem later on.

Stating who is responsible for utilities is also an important part of free lease agreements. The agreement should state that the tenant cannot waste utilities that are being paid by the owner.

Many agreements will also specify if the tenants are allowed to put a trampoline or other items in the yard and most importantly, whether smoking is allowed in the unit. All of the information pertaining to my property management is available using free lease agreements and will protect the owner and the tenant throughout the contract period.

Many lease agreements will state obligations of the property manager and obligations of the tenant. Property managers are usually responsible for maintaining the property in a safe manner and fixing items that are essential to living comfortably. The tenants are responsible for maintaining the interior of the home and not destroying the structure. This may include putting nail holes in the wall, installing different flooring or changing fixtures within the property. Usually these items will be allowed, but the lease agreement will state that the tenant must notify the property manager before certain changes are made within the home.

Free lease agreements are available online and will help you manage your property without paying someone a lot of money to create documents. These agreements are legal and binding and will protect you against damage or expenses involved if a tenant does not live up to the items specified in the lease agreement. Take the time today to go online and download a practical lease agreement for your rental property.
