Finding Legal Assistance for a Wrongful Death Medical Malpractice Case in Pittsburgh by William Hauselberg

Article published on August 4th 2012 | Business

If someone you love recently died after getting medical treatment in Pittsburgh, you may be entitled to compensation. If a doctor or hospital's mistake resulted in the death of a patient, the health care provider is often liable for wrongful death. Contact a wrongful death lawyer Pittsburgh to find out how to proceed with your case.

What is Wrongful Death?

Wrongful death medical malpractice is malpractice that results in the death of a patient. For example, if a doctor misdiagnoses a patient's condition and the misdiagnosis results in the patient's death, the doctor may be liable for wrongful death.

Do I Need An Attorney?

If you want to pursue a wrongful death medical malpractice case in Pittsburgh, you need a wrongful death lawyer Pittsburgh. Your attorney can tell you whether or not you have a case and how best to proceed with that case.

Public Attorneys

If you cannot afford an attorney, you might be interested in getting a public attorney – an attorney who works for a public law firm and takes on low-income clients. In Pennsylvania, you have a couple of choices if you want to get a public attorney. Many neighborhoods have neighborhood legal societies, where you can get legal advice about local issues and hire attorneys for low cost. Every state also has a Legal Aid Foundation. Low-income clients can apply to legal aid for help with any legal matter, whether criminal or civil.

Personal Injury Attorneys

Many personal injury attorneys also handle wrongful death cases. Wrongful death is considered a type of personal injury case, so these lawyers are often capable of handling the case.

Make sure, however, that any personal injury attorney you hire is familiar with medical malpractice cases and wrongful death cases. These cases are often different than other types of personal injury cases so you'll need an experienced attorney to help you get the outcome that you are entitled to.

Medical Malpractice Attorney

If you can, try to hire an attorney who specializes only in medical malpractice cases. This kind of attorney will be extremely familiar with the type of case you need to pursue. He or she is in the best position to help analyze your case and determine what your chances are of winning the case. Wrongful death attorneys know how to get needed medical records, how to approach medical personnel on the stand, and exactly what makes a hospital liable for a patient's death.

Payment Arrangements

Many personal injury and medical malpractice attorneys offer a free initial consultation so that you can determine whether you want to work with a particular attorney. In addition, many attorneys work on a contingency basis. You should try to get an attorney who is willing to agree to this type of arrangement because it gives your attorney extra motivation to try your case. When an attorney works on a contingency basis, he or she does not get paid unless you win your case – your attorney's fees come out of any settlement you win. Thus, the attorney will try his or her hardest to win the case so that they can get paid.
