Article published on June 4th 2012 | Business

ADA signage is a great way for a company to show its care and affection for the physically challenged people and at the same time make life a lot simpler and trouble-free for them. There are some ADA Accessibility Guidelines passed by the American government which should be minutely followed by the companies in case they want to hang ADA (Americans with Disabilities Act) authoritarian signage in the office building. Mounting the tactile ADA signage is easy but only that you need to stick to the laws. The letters or characters used remain partially uplifted than the plane of the writing. Another important thing to be remembered is that there should be a minimum difference of 48 inches between the signs and the floor. The floor here means not only the cemented or tiled floor. Use of any carpet or other sort of fancy covering will be considered as the floor. For a sign consisting of multiple lines, the distance should be measured between the last line and the floor. If the business owners are in need of designing exceptional ada signage for a special cause they need to appeal to the state or federal ADA personnel and get their ideas passed before continuing with the work.

ADA signage is used at various places and there are certain places where they are most used. These signs can be regularly seen in front of the restrooms for both men and women with the normal indicator used for men and women. Above the doors of exit, they are seen written in the actual words following the Braille characters. The no-smoking sign containing of the customary sign of a cigarette being slashed by a stroke over it to depict that a certain area is not fit for smoking. Another place quite commonly such signs can be find is near the staircase.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/general-tips-to-choose-and-utilize-ada-signage.htm - Article Side

James Blee - About Author:
For more information on a ada signs, check out the info available online at http://www.eriecustomsigns.com/

Article Keywords:
ada signs,ada signage,custom braille signs

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!