Article Side

Get your favorite Rustic table built to your customized specifications to meet your requirements by Craftsman

Article published on December 29th 2011 | Business

Table is an important piece of furniture and is used more often than any other furniture at a house. It also serves to be a meeting place as family members sit to have their meals. Like any other piece of furniture, it is important that they should be well built and add to the looks of the dining room or wherever they are proposed to be kept. Different styles are available in tables. Antique tables is one of the common style of tables. It features a very basic structure of a table and is built basically to serve more as a utility table than a decorative piece. However, nicely built and sturdy Antique tables are as good looking as any other table. With rounded legs, they can attain a refined looks that can make them look more like a piece of art rather than having just a utility value. Antique farm table is also known as rustic table for their rustic looks. These looks are similar to the classic looks that tables in olden days used to have. That adds to the charm of these tables.

Rustic table have that old classic looks that makes them so appealing. From utility point of view, these tables offer complete value for money. They have a solid design that makes them resistant to daily wear and tear. The tables have a very basic structure and with minimal or no designs. These tables can be used to serve open meals during a family get together. They can also be used to keep other stuffs when you are not using them for meals. Rustic tables have multi-purpose uses. Best thing about a rustic table is that you can use it for a variety of purpose without any fear of scratches or other damage. They generally come in 38" width with length of the table board varying from five to eight feet. However, customized sized tables are also available.

The cost of the antique farm tables vary depending upon the table specifications and the type of the wood that is used. A table 30" high, 38" wide, and 60" long may cost you around $800 to $900. Customized options may cost extra. Usually an extra length foot may cost $100 and an extra width per foot may cost $50 more. Benches may cost somewhere around $350. Antique farm tables with benches are very handy when you are serving multiple guests. Shipping time may vary depending upon how far is your place. You have the option to choose a hand built table or a machine made table. Machine made table may cost you more as marketing, advertizing, and other charges are included in the final cost of the table. Hand built table are cheaper. However, you will have to wait for some time before your order gets ready. The time to build hand built antique table may vary from five to six weeks. Another advantage is that hand built tables are more solid than machines ones as the joins are fitted manually and tested for strength when they are being built.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/get-your-favorite-rustic-table-built-to-your-customized-specifications-to-meet-your-requirements.htm - Article Side

Craftsman - About Author:
For more information about a Antique farm tablespleasevisita www.craftsmantables.com

Article Keywords:
farm table,farm tables,harvest table,harvest tables,handcrafted tables,handmade custom furniture

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!