If you compare the hot tubs available nowadays with the ones that are available during the early era, you will see a huge difference. The early hot tubs used to be quite boring in appearance and structure. They used to be large sized barrels with some sort of heating element and pump being attached to provide the warm effect. They had a sitting capacity for 3 â€“ 4 people. The modern aged tubs are much different in appearance. They look like those miniature spas that can even fit a whooping ten persons at a time. There are also those small sized tubs available that can allow for 2-3 people. However, such tubs are popular for home installation.

A modern hot tub can be heated with the help of wood, solar power or even with gas. Most of the modern tubs are available in plenty of attractive shades and sizes. They are also available in different designs. They can be used both indoor as well for outdoor purpose. However, prior to purchasing, their jet configurations as well strengths need to be sorted out properly. Purchase the one according to your requirement.

There are some fancy hot tubs available in the market that have some additional features like surround music systems, CD players, LCD television, and even drink holders. These tubs can be seen in clubs and health centers. These luxury items feature for deep seating and water fountain facility. Some of the tubs even feature for LCD lightings.

Hot tubs are always a better option than swimming pool. Tubs can be easier to install if compared to those swimming pools. The tubs are not permanently installed structures and hence can be carried while relocating from one place to another.
