What should you take into consideration when choosing the perfect flight case or presentation case to protect your valuable or precious products?

The first rule is to talk to case manufacturers and suppliers who are trusted for their expertise and reliability by some of the biggest brands in the business, such as Zarges Cases, Explorer Cases or Peli case. That calibre of brand only allows world experts to build and supply their products, so their endorsement speaks volumes.

The will have years of experience in working with clients like yourselves to develop the bespoke case, as well as the case inserts, that you will need. Even if you donâ€™t have experience of purchasing cases and case inserts, they will be able to advise you why a brand like Peli case might meet your particular requirements best, or whether perhaps Zarges cases or Explorer cases are what you need.

Next, check if they carry a wide range of case materials in stock, so that they can guarantee short manufacturing lead times. If they claim to be able to supply you at short notice with a bespoke case â€“ be it a military case, industrial case, aluminium case, presentation case or flight case â€“ check out whether they do carry the case materials in stock, including catches, handles and hinges.

Then thereâ€™s the question of the foam inserts. If the case manufacturer has expertise in manufacturing premium foam inserts in-house, the risk of error is far, far lower in a â€œone-stop-shopâ€• than if the foam inserts are manufactured elsewhere by a third party.

Whether youâ€™re looking for a case insert or a stand-alone foam insert, insist on a high end produce such as, for example, Plastazote.

Plastazote can be used in Zarges cases, Peli cases and Explorer cases, and offers superb presentation and cushioning. When used in a genuinely waterproof bespoke case â€“ be it a military case, aluminium case, flight case, presentation case or whatever â€“ it will keep your valuable or precious equipment safe and sound.

Finally, is space a prime consideration for you? If so, an alternative to a protective case may well be a collapsible tote bin. Collapsible tote bins are an ideal solution where space is an issue either for storage or for returnability. Made out of conductive corriplast, the tote bins are light and yet extremely robust.

And they are yet another way of ensuring that your valuable cargo is always totally protected and safe whenever and wherever itâ€™s in transit.
