The hospital services™ market represents one of the most lucrative segments of the Indian healthcare industry. Various factors, such as increasing prevalence of diseases, improving affordability, and rising penetration of health insurance are fuelling the growth in the Indian hospital industry. Several private players are also entering the sector with new plans of establishing hospitals and health centers around the country. On the back of continuously rising demand, the hospital services industry is expected to be worth US$ 81.2 Billion by 2015.

According to our new research report, “Indian Hospital Services Market Outlook”, the country needs to cover the cumulative deficit of around 3 Million hospital beds to match up with the global average of 3 beds per 1000 population. Huge private sector investments will significantly contribute to the development of hospital industry, comprising around 80% of the total market.
