Live by the Water and Live Your Dream by Estate Pundit

Article published on December 23rd 2011 | Business

Have you always wanted to live by water? Well, you can at Somerset Dam. You can live by a beautiful dam where you can go wake boarding, water skiing, sailing, power boating, jet skiing, canoeing, fishing and so much more. The best thing about it is that you will still only be an hour away from Brisbane, meaning that you can commute between your job and your dream home. Is there anything better than that? If you do not want to live there but are looking for a place to holiday then Somerset is the spot, you can buy a place for yourself, or you can go in on a place with others. Fractional ownership is a fantastic way to own a holiday home without breaking the bank. You split the cost of maintenance as well, making it even more affordable.

Somerset Dam is a gorgeous place to spend your time, it is absolutely stunning. In 1933 the government decided to build a dam across the Stanley River, just before it joins with the Brisbane River, between little Mt Brisbane and Mt Brisbane. The main structure was finished in 1959 and since then a beautiful village has developed 500 metres from the dam wall in an absolutely picturesque setting. That means your home will only be about a kilometre and a half from Lake Somerset, meaning you will not have far to go for all your water sport fun. There is plenty of fish in the lake, including Australian bass, golden perch, silver perch, murray cod, mary river cod, snub nosed gar and Saratoga, so you will never tire of the fishing here either.

There are some great houses for sale at Somerset, places that you wouldnâ€™t believe, places that are so inviting and stylish, sophisticated yet at ease, that you will be blown out of the water, or more literally, blown right onto the water. Some of the homes for sale in Somerset are contemporary and hip while others retain a traditional sense of calm and style. Whatever you want, you can get a Somerset Dam, so make the best lifestyle move of your life.
