An architect is the one who has the correct education and experience to design, synchronize and handle a building project. His/her knowledge covers a wide range of areas, from landscaping design to ergonomics, law, construction materials, techniques etc. This diversity allows an architect to foresee many design options while analyzing a wide range of requirements and restrictions.

Architects in Ireland are known to have well and extensive knowledge about architecture. This can be seen in the various architectural marvels there in Ireland. There are the stunning Georgian buildings which are located all throughout the city. Some of the other amazing traditional buildings include Trinity College, Christ Church Cathedral, Gaiety Theater, The G.P.O and The Bank of Ireland on College Green.

Choosing the right architect is very vital and especially in Ireland as there are so many of them. Their role plays an important part in building one's dream home. So it is very essential to get this job done by a greatly reputed architectural services providing brand. One can have an online review of the best ones there. The most important thing is to find out which are the good ones and which ones are not so good ones.

To differentiate the good brands from the bad ones, one can interview the licensed architects. A good brand should do the following services-

• Zoning and Site Analysis: he/she should tell how much building is allowed on the property, its location etc.

• Programming & Preliminary Design: he/she should provide design sketches based on one's needs and budget.

• Design Development: finalizing the room and building dimensions, door swings, sites of windows, interior finishing and other things of the building's systems that are relevant to the design should also be done.

• Construction Documents: He/she should have detailed knowledge about the dimensions and specifications of the building.

A good brand takes the fee in basically three ways: Percentage of Construction Cost, lump Sum or on an hourly rate.

Architects in Galway and Architects in Limerick are also quite apt in their job but they are not as specialized and experienced as the ones in Ireland.
