Micro Scooters: Most Popular Among Kids & Adults by Maric Capell

Article published on June 16th 2012 | Business

Micro scooters are fast becoming a rage among youngsters today. Be it outside a school, play ground or gaming zones, you can find these micro scooters and kids and adults using it equally. If you are planning to buy one, there are few things that you have to keep in mind.

First of all, what you need to decide is what you would be using the micro scooter for? These are a rage not only among kids but teenagers and adults equally. Statistics show that a large portion of the sale of these scooters is because of grown ups. A lot of people use them as a mode of transport between home and work. Some of them use it pure fun. Children mostly use it for recreation. The like to hang out with their friends, ride it in a park, commute to school etc. Adults on the other hand use it mainly use it to commute to office, train stations etc. Therefore, it is very important that you decide what you are going to use the scooter for and purchase the right model.

Then you have to equip yourself with all the knowledge that you can gain about the micro scooter. All of them have their own benefits and restrictions and you should be aware about them. One of the most important things to look out for is guarantee. There are very few micro scooters brands today in the UK that will give you guaranteed products. If your micro scooter is damaged then most of the manufacturers will ascertain what might have happened by just viewing the damage. A lot of manufacturers will ask for photographic proofs. Therefore, if you intend to use the scooter for heavy duty purpose and expose it top rough terrain, it is advisable that you choose a model which is more suited to these requirements and offer you guarantee for the same.

Next you will have to ensure that you choose a scooter which is of correct size. If you are a commuter and want to use the scooter for that purpose, it is better if you go for taller designs. This will give you a more relaxed riding feel. If you are an extreme rider, what you would want to look out for is a shorter handle bar. Also, for an extreme rider, light weight models are an added advantage as it is easier to glide them through the streets and also are handier while performing stunts.

And finally, you must realize that the scooter will go through lot of wear and tear so some of the parts will have to be replaced. It mostly depends on for what purpose is the scooter used and on what kind of terrain the scooter ridden. This will give you a brief idea of often would you need to change the components and other spare parts.
