Patio Furniture How to Accessorize by Ackchairs

The ability to wow a crowd with a smartly decorated patio does not depend solely on your patio furniture. Not even close. If you have a lovely patio furniture set, great. But now you must think about how to show it off. As with fashion, itâ€™s all about accessories. Just as a chic handbag paired with the right jeans and a cute top really makes the look, so patio furniture accessories make the decorative scheme in your outdoor living space.

You can start with cushions for your patio chairs and loveseat, since youâ€™ll probably want them for comfort anyway. As long as theyâ€™re moisture-proof, you can choose any cushions you want, and the more creative the fabrics, the better. Mix and match patterns, colors and graphics. And, add a few throws to cozi-fy your chairs and loveseat even further.

A really fun idea is to incorporate curtains into you patio dÃ©cor. If you have any sort of structure surrounding the patio, this is an easy project. Just install curtain rods and long curtain panels on one or two walls. A wall could be the side of yours house, sliding doors that open onto the deckâ€”use your imagination (and weather-rated curtains!)

Since much of your time on the patio takes place in the evening, keeping plenty of candles around is a lovely way to decorate and illuminate your space. When decorating with candles, more is more. Cover the coffee table with candles of varying heights in the same color family. Add more to any side tables, ledges, and the dining table. Just be mindful of fire hazards!

Make sure to include copious amounts of foliage, too. Arrange potted flowers and greenery on the patio floor. Hang a few flowering plants if possible, and feature one or two potted trees in bare corners. This will create a lush atmosphere which is just how an outdoor living area should feel.

Light is a very important element on a patio and it should be done to be aesthetically-pleasing, as well as functional. Lanterns are a popular and very charming way to bring more light onto the patio. Try hanging a couple wall sconce lanterns on an anterior wall, and then position a decorative lantern to house candles in the middle of your dining table or chat table. Hanging decorative lights, like rattan bulbs, is another touch full of character, plus itâ€™s a natural look. Try hanging them on the ceiling over the patio table, or along an adjacent fence of anterior wall.

Finally, bring a little warmth to your set-up with an outdoor rug. This makes your patio furniture arrangement instantly more homey and incorporates another bit of color and pattern into the mix. As if you needed more incentive to kick off your shoes while enjoying the patio this summer!
