Article published on April 26th 2012 | Business

What is pest control?

Pest infestation is a common problem; sighting of a pest inside the house is an indication to a bigger problem, which must be dealt with, as earliest as possible. Most common pests are notorious in nature; they adapt to your house and refuse to budge even after repeated attempts to drive them out. An expert pest controller can help you get a grip over the situation and you have a good chance of winning back your abode. Pest control has to be done regularly to ensure that these creatures do not come back anytime soon.

Common Household Pests

Some of the most common household pests are listed below and they ways to deal with them is discussed in the following section

? INSECTS: Common insects that infest our houses are

Cockroaches, Ants, Termites, Wasps, Bed Bugs, Mud Dauber, and Fleas

? ANIMALS: Animals that infest our house and surroundings as pests are

Mice, Rats, Squirrels, Raccoons, and Pigeons

Pests such as cockroaches, termites, ants are found in almost every household. They often swirl out of control if their growth is not kept under check. Termites can do serious damage to your wooden furniture and house. Cockroaches are particularly annoying as they often roam around and nest inside your kitchen and waste disposal bins. Carpenter ants are known for the damage they can do to your wooden frames, fence, door and window voids and other structures.

If you have identified the problem then the next step should include an effective pest control program. Successful pest management involves getting to the root of the problem rather than temporary containment.

Steps for Effective Pest Control

? Cockroaches, silverfish, and ants can be treated by spraying over the counter pesticides. Be careful while applying the same read the instruction properly before you start off.

? Effective pest management involves integrated pest control which must include ways to make your house hostile towards pest multiplication.

? Clean the house regularly; remove all the leftover food from the cooking table and kitchen.

? Cover the dust bin and empty it daily.

? Drains and water outlets must be cleared of any clogs.

? Warm and moisture corners of the house is the most suitable place for pest growth, regularly clean dark corners of your house must be checked regularly to rule out nesting by pests.

? Termites may be hard to get rid in this case, consider hiring professional exterminators who can help you remove these unwanted guests from your house.

? Mice and rats are outrageous and repulsive; sighting of any of these invites a scream from the human inhabitants of the house. These animals can be caught by laying traps and has to be physically removed before they multiply at an alarming rate. House must be kept clean and all crevice and cracks should be repaired to prevent them from entering.

? Fleas and bugs have to physically remove by vacuum clean and regular dusting. Pets must be checked by a vet, to treat any possible fleasâ€™ infestation.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/pest-control-best-ways-to-control-pests.htm - Article Side

Seolncr - About Author:
Professional pest control services. We offer immediate solutions for your bed bug, bird, insects, rodent pest problems and removal. For more info about a Long Island Exterminating anda Long Island Pest Control visit optimumpestcontrol.com.

Article Keywords:
Long Island Exterminating, Long Island Pest Control

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!