Want to know what a camouflage fabric is all about? It is nothing but a uniform that is used by the military people. They have been used by the army people for several years. The uniquely designed clothing is rugged in appearance and messy in its patterns. And though they look rough and rugged, they are actually lightweight cotton materials. The cool materials used to make the camouflage fabric can be worn for any type of climate- whether it is warm or cold, it doesn't matter! Literally, the clothing that was used by the military professionals once are being used by fashion enthusiasts to make bold fashion statement with their trendy costumes. Besides the men, even women are catching up with the camouflage fabric fever.

Wonder how it all started? Here is a bit of interesting information for you. People in the textile industry once realized that there were certain limitations with the fabrics that they were using to make the camouflage clothing. This was because some fabrics attracted insects and bugs while some faded quickly. Some fabrics were not considered to be durable. Most fabrics would glare due to reflected light falling on them. All these limitations of the old fabrics lead to the introduction of the innovative camouflage fabric. The camouflage fabrics are available in different styles and dazzling colors. And there are many types to choose from. Heavy duty materials are used by fisherman and hunters. There is another type of camouflage fabrics that is made especially for the military people serving the country and another pattern for the sewers and a similar one for the quilters. The nature-rised camouflage fabrics consist of natural colors that blend with the environment. These types of fabrics refract the incoming light and prevent glare and shine. The manufacture of the normal fabrics takes place only in one or two steps but the nature-rised fabrics have to go through 8 steps and they contain as many layers as well. They are water proof and won't fade.

Thanks to the innovative textile owners. The camouflage fabrics are now finding applications even in the households- for a different purpose apart from the clothing. Yes, they can also be used to decorate your bedroom. While choosing the perfect camouflage fabrics, it is important that you select your favorite pattern as many patterns and colors are available. They come in colors like purple, green, pink, gray etc. You can also decorate your walls using the camouflage fabrics. This can be done by drawing some wall pattern using a paint brush or pencil and later attaching the fabrics to the walls. You can choose the fabrics for bedding by finding the appropriate pattern from the stores. You can use the camouflage fabrics as accessories to give a finishing touch to your room as it can be done by covering the lamp shades and picture frames by the fabrics. So whether you want to be in the woods like the hunter or in the battlefield like the military people, the camouflage fabrics are the best you can think of as they are available in many patterns and preferred by many people.
