Roger Hamilton and the abandon of desire to live abundantly by Crowin Smith

Article published on December 17th 2011 | Business

It is a known fact that the world is facing one of the worst financial crises that it has ever faced in the past. It is really important to find out the reason behind the frequent recessions as well as the depressions that one or the other country keeps on facing. And also there is no doubt that many experts in the field of economics have already tried their level best to make sure that the system that they have put in place keeps working as smoothly as possible. But according to Roger Hamilton that is never going to happen. The best that the advocates in the field of economics can do is keep on rectifying one error after another that would keep raising their faces every now and then.

And Roger Hamilton knows that because he himself is very much familiar with the system. He used to be a strong advocate of the present system of economics, and whatever actions and decisions that he took was based on the principles as well as the theories as were taught to him by the scholars at the finest university of the world. But he decided to break away from the system, and find a system that would never encourage any kind of negativity to creep into the smooth flow of finance. And he did that exactly in the way a courageous and a man of character would do. The system under which Roger was operating in his early professional life, gave him nothing but one failure after another despite of the hard work that he had been doing. And the new system that he discovered was a revelation to him as well as to the others who followed the path that he discovered and chose to follow.

According to the new system that Roger Hamilton discovered, it is not the man made system of finance that would help the individual in creating wealth. The only system of wealth creation that can really help the individual in making it big in life is the one that gives precedence to the Nature that it is responsible for the creation of man himself.

And Roger Hamilton went a step ahead and made sure that the individual who has become interested in the concept of the nature playing a leading role in the art of wealth creation is not left lurching in the dark. He formulated his findings in the form of theories that would help the individual in recognizing that the role of nature is in the form of the natural flow that each individual is blessed with. And once the individual has discovered that natural flow, and would start acting according to it, the desire of creating wealth would abandon him and wealth itself would embrace him.
