A brief outline is given here to the prospective and potential tenants to help them out in finding perfect accommodation for rent and also to give them the idea of renting procedure.

One always faces a predicament when it comes to decide between purchasing or renting houses in UK. Before reaching a final decision there are many key considerations to be think over thoroughly. At first place is the duration of your stay in the new location, your financial situation and you also have to consider the situation of property market in the city of UK you are making your new home.

It is sensible to engage services of an experienced and professional letting agent instead of doing the job on your own. You can find a letting agent operating in the city by searching over the net. There are number of online property websites that provided there services to help prospective tenants in finding accommodation for rent.

Letting agent or letting agencies are equipped with the latest knowledge in the renting market. There professionalism makes the renting a home quite easy for you. Before choosing a letting agent, donâ€™t forget to check the properties in their lists. This will determine the quality of properties they are having in their list and also show their experience. Once you brief them about your ideal home, the location you are looking for, qualities of the area, your budget, facilities and amenities you demand, they will do the rest. When the house(s) in UK of your choice is found they will arrange viewing of the property. When you have done with the viewing of the property and found it perfect for peacefully living, they will negotiate with the landlord on rent and other matters. Donâ€™t forget to look the surrounding area while viewing the property. They will also prepare the tenancy agreement that is mutually reached between you and your landlord on agreeable terms and conditions.

Once you have chosen an accommodation for rent, do check whether your landlord has the permission to rent it out. Make sure the electrics and gas appliances meet the safety regulations and your landlord possess safety certificates. Donâ€™t forget to check whether the furniture and furnishings in the house bears the fire safety label. There should be a fire alarm in the house. After checking all the things regarding property and your safety, move in and enjoy a peaceful living in your new home.

It is suggested to go through the rules and regulation dealing with renting of houses in UK. It will give you the idea of responsibilities you owe as a tenant, your rights and corresponding rights and responsibilities of your landlord. You have to deposit a monthâ€™s rent in advance and you also have to pay the deposit money to your landlord. When a tenancy agreement is reached, do read it carefully to consider each and every condition in it. If there is an ambiguity, then consult a lawyer. Ask the landlord to remove the ambiguities and make it agreeable to both parties. This agreement is very important not only during the continuation of your tenancy but also at the termination of tenancy for refund of deposit, etc.
