As a stand-alone global business destination, Dubai is the centre of business-related activities in the UAE and across the GCC, with the majority of business transactions in the region happening in or from Dubai. Benefiting from the developing markets and bridging the major time zones, there is more opportunity for business in Dubai compared to any other city in the UAE. Renting an office in Dubai can be the most suitable solution compared to purchasing your own office, especially for SMEâ€™s and start up businesses. Renting an office in Dubai will give you an opportunity to save on both cost and time. What with the financial investment and cost to time, of fitting out a purchased office space from shell and core to an operational standard at minimum, renting a fully furnished and serviced office space is the convenient and obvious choice for that intent on getting on with their own business at hand.

Over the past few decades Dubai has emerged as one of the high flyers of global business destinations. Its lower tax and lenient business policy make it a perfect place to setup and base a business. Corporations looking for business setup in Dubai immediately benefit from the boundless opportunity afforded by developing markets, and being situated in a convenient bridge between major time zones. Although recession made a huge impact on the global economy, Dubai faired well and still remains one of the first choices for investors from all over the world.

When planning to setup a business in Dubai? It is important to research and prepare spending money on arranging an office location and setting up the required infrastructure is not strictly a necessity that you must bare alone. There are a variety of accessible serviced offices in Dubai. Serviced offices solve the problem of investing time and money in facilitating your own office as they are already furnished with all the facilities, services and equipment that would be required. Serviced offices provide you all the amenities that you will require to setup your business or office in Dubai, and many deliver a higher level of office infrastructure, quality of service and personalised business support. Moreover, these offices are equipped with all the necessary office equipment such, photocopiers, scanners, printers, projectors, receptionist, conference rooms, tea and coffee with catering services, and necessary safety arrangements.

When looking for there are a vast number of business centres and serviced office providers that can help. However, it can be vital that you source a serviced office partner who is aware of the country and place in which you will be operating. One whom which can offer vast local knowledge and experience, along side a prestigiously located, high-end office solution that integrates into your business and personal needs. Taking the time to support new business in the area rather than simply facilitating it. Establishing an office in Dubai can be a challenging task for an inexperienced individual or organisation. So always research your serviced office partner and the full facilities and services that they can offer you. Knowing that you can rely on a professional and supportive, local team from the offset will mean that your business is free to make the most out of Dubai and the UAE.
