Should You Drive to the Airport?

by Trudi Thorburn

Article published on May 18th 2012 | Business

It takes a special arrangement for the airline to take your car to another place. It only happens rarely, as many people would leave their cars at home and take a cab or a bus to the airport instead. Of course, that is not always the case.

arking lots five to 10 minutes away from major airports offer security for the travelersâ€™ cars until they return. While it makes sense to leave their cars at home, for travelers living miles away from the airport, driving may be the ideal choice. It makes more sense to bring your car to carry a dozen bags or if youâ€™re traveling with friends and family. If you meet the following conditions, your car will be helpful in bringing you to the airport on time.

The extra mile: Major airports like the one in Minneapolis not only serve the locals but also travelers from beyond the city or state. Driving from Duluth to Minneapolis can take you two and a half hours. Take note of the fact that you normally have to be in the airport two hours before your flight.

If your flight is scheduled at 3:00 p.m., you may have to leave Duluth at around 11:00 a.m. so you can get to Minneapolis at 1:00 p.m. In this case, you can stay in a hotel in Minneapolis the day before you leave. Whatever choice you make, driving may be your best shot in going the extra mile.

The extra load: Traveling often means heavy bags and group vacations â€“ all the more reason to drive to the airport. You can hire a cab to take you to the airport; but if you think hiring one will cost you more, you can always take your car with you. The great thing about airport parking Minneapolis Airport has to offer is that you can leave your car there for the length of your trip. You donâ€™t have to worry about your car with tight security on the watch for car burglars 24/7.

Taking your car to the airport may be a good idea if youâ€™re prepared. Park and fly Minneapolis parking lots let you travel without you having to worry about your sedan or SUV.

Google Maps is a good tool to compute the distance from your city or town to the nearest airport. You can use it to decide whether or not to take your car. If you do need to drive, parking at Minneapolis Airport will be hassle-free.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/should-you-drive-to-the-airport.htm - Article Side

Trudi Thorburn - About Author:
For more details, search a parking Minneapolis Airport, a Park and fly Minneapolis ana parking at Minneapolis Airport in Google for related information.

Article Keywords:
park and fly minneapolis, parking at minneapolis airport, parking minneapolis airport

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!