Swimming Pool Contractors: - Want to know how to find good Swimming Pool Contractors? by Pinky Sharma

Article published on July 2nd 2012 | Business

You decided that it is time to get that Swimming Pool Contractors your family has been dreaming about. You go online, looked at pictures, and have a good sense of what design you would like for your backyard. Now what? Itâ€™s time to do your research on your local Swimming Pool Contractors to see which ones you would like to invite into your home to build your dream.

The secret to filtering our which pool builders to use is to ask a lot of questions. Ask the Swimming Pool Contractors how long they have been building Pool Contractors. Being in the â€œPool Contractors businessâ€• can mean anything from cleaning pools and servicing pools to working in a pool retail store selling supplies.

Also, when some Swimming Pool Contractors so that they have for example, over 50 years of experience, does that mean as a company or total number of years of experience of each employee totaled? That is why you have to ask very specific questions. How long has their company been in business and how many swimming pools have they built out of their location? Do the Swimming Pool Contractors provide chemical service or repair services? Typically, Swimming Pool Contractors that have service routes or retail stores are in it for the long haul and are looking at you as a customer for life.

Do the Pool Contractors have a ready list of references? Good Swimming Pool Contractors will not hesitate to provide you with a list of customers, both new and old.

When a pool is newly completed, typically homeowners are thrilled to finally have their backyard dream realized, but what about the owners of pools built several years back? How was warranty issues handled? Were they addressed in a timely manner? Ask them if they were to build a pool again, would they pick the same Swimming Pool Contractors or call in other Swimming Pool Contractors to bid? You should randomly call some of the references so that you get a mix of old and new customers.

Ask them why did they pick their Swimming Pool Contractors over the other Swimming Pool Contractors that they interviewed? Was your pool built to plan? Did they have any issues during construction and if so, how were they resolved? It is not uncommon to have unforeseen issues come up in any type of construction, especially for pool construction. When problems arose, how were they handled?

When you sat down across the table from your salesman and made a deal, was it clear as to what the process was going to be like? Different Swimming Pool Contractors have their own way of managing the Swimming Pool Contractors process. You need to ask your salesperson if he is going to manage the project or if he is going to hand it off to construction supervisor.

If you think about it, you sat down and made a deal with the person sitting across the table, not necessarily the pool company that he/she represented. Good Pool Contractors will make is so it is required that their salespeople stay involved in the process until completion, to ensure customer satisfaction. Of course there will be construction crews in and out of your yard but the person that is ultimately responsible for building your pool to plan is your salesperson and they should be proactive, easily accessible, and responsive at all times.
