Automated billing services are quite a rage nowadays. And this is not without a reason. It saves so much time and effort and there are hardly any chances of miscalculations. These are the things that we usually think. Contrary to popular belief, there are lots of things that might go wrong in automated billing services. Here are some of them:

â€¢ Hidden costs: The service providers who give automated billing services often have hidden costs. It can be considered as a small price that you have to pay for prompt and quick services. However, at times that can really exceed the normal mark and this is when you should revert back to the old, tried and tested method of manual billing with printed paper bills.

â€¢ Over Balance: With automated billing so easy and clutter free, most of us do not feel the urge to check on from time to time. Some of these services have the advantages of using first and paying later, to be deducted from the next balance. Much like credit cards, if you are not careful, your amount might ride up to such a hefty sum that you have to burn a hole in your pocket.

â€¢ Untraceable Fee Structure: automated billing system often has added costs attached to them. If you are in the habit of paying without seeing, you might not even know when one or two subsidiary services have been added, you might not even use them- all in the name of the package. And then it becomes so late that you cannot even distinguish between the costs.

Because of these reasons it is essential that you must exercise caution while indulging in automated billing service. It is not bad at all, but at the same time it would be better if we keep our eyes open as it is our money after all.
