Unlocked cell phones are those which are supporting any GSM network with similar SIM cards. Whoever be the service provider, these unlocked cell phones automatically detect the SIM card and transmit voice and data over the network. On the other hand, the locked cell phones are supporting only a particular carrier network and its customized software settings. The facility and flexibility in enjoying all the GSM network service is said to be the most benefit of unlocked these. The unlocked phone flexibility is utilized in the form of replacing the existing SIM card with the desired one without even waiting for the expiry of a contract with the current service provider.

In the phone market there are so many of these manufacturing companies dealing in unlocked these. A customer's decision to switch from one network to other network without having any hardware or software upgrade is said to be the highlight of the unlocked cell phones which revolutionized the industry in the recent past. Even travelers who want to use different SIM cards of different network service providers at different countries are so convenient with the unlocked phones.

The increased manufacturing and distribution of both GSM and CDMA phones with affordable prices has given big popularity for these phones with a large market share. This made it cheaper and readily available in the market through various chains stores and retail outlets. The global brands like Apple, Acer, Asus, AUDIOVOX, Blackberry, Eten, Gigabyte, Google g phone, Hp ipaq, HTC/mda, I-Mate, Kyocera phones, LG InfoComm, Mitsubishi, Motorola, Neonode, ntelos, Nokia, O2, Palm/Treo, Panasonic, Pantech, Philips, Samsung, Sidekick, Seimens / benq, Sony Ericson, Toshiba, Vertu etc. are have played a significant role in making the cell phone industry sky rocketing in its demands and supply. The revolution of Chinese phones with a globalization effect also made some revolutionary movement in the cheap price and availability of phones.

The market reach of its due to the large supply, distribution and cheap prices have brought it to every corner of the world. The lower prices and better features of these with enough service centers and spare availability altogether made it a global attraction. A considerable share of these market is traded through these online mediums. Apart from the normal showroom retailers, there are so many Virtual Traders and shopping Websites too in this field. The technological advancement is innovating latest applications and added features for the new generation cell phones. Hence, the older technology based phones become obsolete in the industry and demand for the same decreases leading to decrease in its customers and price. Whatever, the secondhand / used mobile market is also strong in so many countries, especially in the Asian markets.
