Article published on February 13th 2012 | Business

Not only are these allegations untrue, but they have misled a number of people who could truly benefit from this unique service. In many ways, the company is working to adapt the wholesale and dropship playing field to the age of the Internet. Many experienced and amateur people in the field have been able to discover new products, expand their reach, and meet new people thanks to the Internet. Unfortunately, the online world has made it easy for middlemen, con artists, and unscrupulous suppliers to make a fast buck off of unsuspecting buyers. Wholesaledeals.co.uk hopes to tackle this problem by only working with verified suppliers.

A New Set of Standards

Look behind most any review about a Wholesale Deals scam, and youâ€™re sure to find a disgruntled person who has lost business thanks to the stringent practices of the company. Wholesaledeals does not work with unverifiable suppliers, and in this way, many con artists and middlemen lose out. In an effort to try and tarnish the reputation of this company, many of these unscrupulous people have tried to start rumors about Wholesale Deals scams. These claims are completely false. In fact, Wholesaledeals offers a simple and straightforward service that can help buyers connect with the right products and sellers.

For those who have read about a Wholesale deals scam and are unsure about the service, it can be helpful to know just what this resource offers. In very basic terms, it simplifies the sourcing process for the buyer. Finding the right product that will make a profit can be hard enough. The risk of unverified suppliers and con artists can make the process even more difficult and time-consuming. Wholesaledeals basically takes care of this process for the buyerâ€”they continuously scout out new products from a list of verified sellers. But, that isnâ€™t all they offer the average buyer.

The Complete Package

Many false claims about a Wholesale Deals scam ignore the fact that the company doesnâ€™t just find new products from verified sellers; they also provide all the relevant information about the product. This includes information on extra taxes, minimum order information, how much the product sells for with other retailers, and how much of a profit the buyer can make. If buyers find deals that interest them, they simply need to purchase the deal tracker, contact the supplier, and seal the deals! But, Wholesaledeals doesnâ€™t stop thereâ€”they even offer a money-back guarantee on their services.

If for any reason the product advertised is not available or more expensive than advertised, the buyer simply needs to inform Wholesaledeals. They will step in and try to get the deal that was advertised. If this doesnâ€™t work, the buyerâ€™s money will be refunded. This is clear proof that claims of a Wholesale deals scam are false. After all, how can you scam people if you offer a guarantee on your services? On the contrary, this guarantee proves that the company not only provides quality services but stands behind their services as well.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/the-real-story-behind-false-claims-of-a-wholesale-deals-scam.htm - Article Side

Brad Smith - About Author:

There are many spurious claims of a a Wholesale deals scam making the rounds on the Internet. These false allegations are perpetuated by unscrupulous people who have been affected by the positive impact a Wholesaledeals.co.uk has had on many buyers.

Article Keywords:
Wholesale deals scam, Wholesale deals scams

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!