It has always been the need of every person to save their important or confidential data at some specific place. In the modern age people have always used different types of media for the storage of their data, depending upon the type of data they need to store.

In the beginning of the revolutionary digital data storage, big size floppy disks were used for this purpose. They were the least reliable media because of their sensitive nature. Later on compact size floppy disks were invented but their problem was also the same as they were unreliable media.

With further enhancement in the technology industry, compact disks, also known as CDs, were invented. CDs gained a great popularity among people belonging to all types of professions due to their high storage capacities as well as their reliability and durability.

Since CDs have become the most widely used media for data storage, it has become very important to keep them in a protective cover which will protect a CD from outer scratches and in this way giving it a long life.

This is why custom CD sleeves have become a need of the day. A customized CD sleeve not only acts as a protective cover for the CD but also doubles its value and outlook, and in this way increases the sale of the CD. A CD sleeve tempts a customer to buy it due to its vivid colors and graphical content.

When talking about CD sleeves, clear CD sleeves have also gained popularity. The reason for the popularity of a clear CD sleeve is the CD stickers being introduced by printing companies. These CD stickers add a great value to CDs and in this way reduce the need of CD sleeves for making a CD attractive.

A CD sticker is mostly made from sticker paper stock. You can print custom graphical images, your companyâ€™s logo, name, or your customized text on your CD sticker. It doubles the value of your CD.

Due to the ever increasing demand of CDs, they have become a hot item in the market. This is the reason why the significance of CD sleeve printing has become a lot more in the present. CDs are a great tool for people belonging to various professions, may they belong to music industry, movies, theatres, corporate businesses or small businesses, CDs are considered to be a very helpful media in data storage.

With the ever increasing competitors coming in the market everyday, the online printing companies have always tried to introduce new and innovative methods of advertisement to their customers. In this regard, the concept of CD booklets has been recently introduced. A CD booklet contains comprehensive information about CDâ€™s contents and acts as a complete guide book for the customers.
