The uses for Screen Printing Ink by Mary Porter

Article published on June 16th 2012 | Business

Screen printing ink and pad printing ink can be used in a number of different applications. The main benefit of screen printing ink is that is can be used on a range of different materials and products and provides fantastic results.

The most common applications for screen printing ink is for use on glass, plastic, metal, rubber, leather, candles, foam, fabric, wood and latex.

Many different industries utilize the screen printing ink and pad printing ink techniques for creating and manufacturing their products.

For all your screen printing ink and pad printing ink requirements you should use a specialist company who will offer their expertise to ensure the finished results fulfil all your requirements.

There are many different types of screen printing ink that are used for different products and if you donâ€™t know what youâ€™re looking for it can be confusing and you should always seek advice from the ink retailer to help you choose the right ink for the job.

Both screen printing ink and pad printing ink procedures are very technical and can be dangerous and must be carried out by experienced people.

There are lots of safety guidelines to follow when using screen printing ink and lots of testing will need to be carried out to find the right ink for your products. Screen printing ink and pad printing ink will need to undergo lots of various tests once it has been applied to a product or material to ensure the ink is safe, doesnâ€™t run, fade or rub off.

Pad printing ink is a technique that is used to print onto difficult objects and tends to be used to print a 2D or 3D image onto an object. Pad printing ink tends to be used on items like plastic toys, keyboards, pens, electronic equipment, automotive products and medical equipment.

Most 3D objects that we use in everyday life and that have any form of printing on will have been printed using pad printing ink.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/the-uses-for-screen-printing-ink.htm - Article Side

Mary Porter - About Author:
a Screen Printing Ink sold by lysistechnologies.com. We are a company providing some of the best a Pad Printing Inkin the industryâ€“ Visit us today for more information on our products!

Article Keywords:
Screen Printing Ink, Pad Printing Ink

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!