Tips on How to Clean Shower Glass by Julia Roger

Article published on June 2nd 2012 | Business

Taking a cool shower after a long dayâ€™s work seem quite relaxing but when it comes to cleaning the glass we really donâ€™t feel interested or keep avoiding the task. But at times it gets necessary to clean shower glass so that whenever we have guests at our home we donâ€™t feel embarrassed due to dirty glass enclosures. Once you learn the trick to clean the glass you would really find it simple to do it on a regular basis. The cleaning would not only make your glass appear new but would even make you feel proud of its shine and sparkle.

In order to keep the glass cleaning it is necessary to do the routine maintenance on a weekly basis as it would help you avoid the buildup of any residue that will keep them looking sparkling and new. You just need a window cleaner, scrub brush and a squeegee Just spray the entire glass with this concoction, scrub it with a soft bristle brush and remove the excess with a squeegee. This would keep your shower sparkling and clean. As most of the stuff on the glass doors is soap scum, mildew and hard water deposits which makes the glass looked fogged hence before starting the cleaning you need to ensure that the agent does not harms the glass surface or create any scratches on it.

It is advisable to read the safety instructions carefully before using the cleaner since most of them are toxic and contain acetic and phosphoric acid. You also need to ensure that the bathroom is well ventilated and you need to wear rubber gloves to keep your skin away from the cleaner. The glass door should be dry and test the cleaner at a small corner before applying it on the whole glass in order to see for any damages. You need to let the cleaner remain on the glass for some time so that it can easily remove the deposited materials from the glass. Even after scrubbing and washing with cold water you find any soap scum then sharp razor blade may be used with caution to remove the spots causing any damage to the glass. Wipe down the glass with a dry cloth and you would notice the sparkling clean glass.
