

Article published on April 3rd 2012 | Business

Home Offices Need a Toll Free Number

There are an estimated 18.3 home based businesses in the United States. That number increases exponentially when people who occasionally work from home are included. The trick is finding a way to make a home office work for you and the answer just may be to get a toll free number.

Easy to Reach

Having a home office can be a challenge, especially when there are family members there as well. Having a toll free number can make it easy for customers to reach a business. If you have caller ID at home, family members will know it is a work related call and to not answer the phone. This is especially important for young kids or even teenagers who are incapable of taking a message. Who knows what they would say if a business call came in for their mother while she was in the shower and they accidentally answered it. Toll free numbers can help with this situation.

Professional and Established Appearance

Toll Free Numbers can help give the professional appearance that people are looking for. 1 800 numbers often give the appearance of having a professional and well-established business. This is true even for business people who are working from a corner of their kitchen table with nothing but a laptop and a phone. Toll free numbers are also a great way of advertising. The numbers can be used on websites, business cards, pamphlets and more as a way for people around the world to get in touch with your home office without having to worry about long distance charges or fees.

Mobile Office

Many people who are home entrepreneurs or work part time from home are often on the go. Toll free numbers can easily be forwarded to these hard working individual's cell phones. The technology can make sure that customers can contact a business regardless of what is going on. Alternatively, the toll free number provider can also have call screening in place during certain times. All calls would then go straight to voicemail ensuring that there are no unnecessary interruptions. The business person can then go through the voicemail messages at a later time and call people back as necessary and as their schedule permits.

Vanity Numbers

There is a range of toll free numbers that are easy to remember. These sorts of numbers can be adjusted to suit different home office businesses. For example, someone doing tax returns from home could have a number such as 1-800-TAX-PREP. Not only would this business get a boost in terms of having a larger, more professional appearance, potential clients would easily remember their phone number too. This is an extremely affordable way for businesses to grow their client base quickly.

Getting a toll free number is easier and more affordable than most people know. There are many advantages for people with home offices to have toll free numbers to help maintain and grow the business of their dreams.

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/toll-free-numbers.htm> - Article Side

Alex Christopher - About Author:

Alex Christopher is a marketing representative for iTeleCenter, a company that provides local, 800 and a toll free number in conjunction with a virtual phone system to their clients. Services include call forwarding, voicemail and more.

Article Keywords:

toll free number, toll free numbers, virtual phone system, business phone numbers, 1 800 numbers, 1800 numbers, local phone numbers

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!