There would be no car enthusiast who would not have heard the name of Toyota. The company has been manufacturing different kinds of cars for different kinds of people over the years. There are family cars, SUVs as well as large trucks that are built by Toyota and all of them are designed and manufactured with immaculate precision and hard work. Smallest details are checked again and again so that there are no faults in the machine before they are brought out from the workshop for public viewing and sale. Toyota car warranty is also provided to every person who buys a Toyota car for providing that additional coverage for the car.

New Toyota car warranty

Every person who buys a new Toyota car will be eligible for new Toyota car warranty. There are many things that come under the coverage of this warranty plan. There is a basic coverage that is provided for 36 months/36,000-miles, whichever comes first. But the basic warranty coverage does not end here. There is powertrain coverage that is provided for 60 months/60,000 miles. This includes things like front-wheel and rear-wheel drive system, engine and transmission/transaxle. Emissions coverage that is provided by Toyota can be understood from the warranty booklet. There is also rust-through coverage provided for 60 months/unlimited miles and this is applicable for perforation of the sheet metal due to corrosion.

Hybrid Toyota car warranty

Toyota has many hybrid vehicles and warranties are also provided on those models just like the new cars. With the various hybrid models, people have experienced enhanced efficiency, drivability and high technological standards in the cars. There it is important that such cars should also have good warranty schemes. The basic coverage, rust-through coverage and powertrain coverage is the same as the warranty provided in a new Toyota car warranty. However, the additional coverage that is provided in this is the hybrid-related component coverage. The hybrid components include inverter with converter, battery control module, hybrid control module and the HV battery. These are covered for almost 8 years or 100,000 miles, whichever comes first. However, it is quite possible that the HV battery might have a longer warranty period and that can be read in the booklet containing the warranty details.

Warranty for Toyota car accessories

The various accessories that are manufactured for Toyota cars are done in a manner that they are considered world class. The accessories provide high standards of performance and efficiency for a long period of time without any complaints. Majority of the accessories have a warranty of 12 months and this is applicable for almost all car companies. However, if you purchase the various car accessories at the same time when you are buying the car, the Toyota accessory warranty coverage will be applicable for a period of 36 months or 36,000 miles. This will stand effective from the new car's in-service date and it is the same coverage that is provided in the Toyota New Vehicle Limited warranty offer. Otherwise the accessories have a warranty of 12 months and regardless of any mileage calculation.
