Fulfilment services can be considered as a method of subsequent transaction starting from ordering to delivery. Fulfilment procedures differ extensively depending on whether customers request products or services. Fulfilment services can be divided into two broad categories one is service fulfilment and the other, product fulfilment.

Membership fulfilment is a typical example of service fulfilment. It does not involve delivery of physical goods. It is the process of building particular services which can be offered to the subscribed clients. Fulfilment services involve association of a set up of client profiles in computer systems and it also coordinates with various service providers. It is responsible for service quality control and delivery of services to the customers. For instance, e-mail clients username and password for accessing connections to computer systems or mail the membership cards to the customers. Product Fulfilment is a type of fulfilment services which includes the process of manufacturing, warehousing, gathering, quality control and delivery of finished product directly to customers. Customer can place orders via the web, email, telephone or fax.

Moreover order fulfilment services allow an organization to spotlight on advertising and marketing campaign which is the most important in recent business situations. In United Kingdom, this service controls the products in storehouses and ships them to customers. It becomes like outsource warehousing and shipping department which is more cost effective and allows controlling fixed cost into changeable costs. Customer only pays for what they use. It allows to grow at own pace without having to formulate bulky investment .Products get delivered to your consumers without having to be bothered about storing and concerned for supply. The UK fulfilment services also tend to provide services that clients might not expect such as online stock checks for your ecommerce store customers. Owning their own warehouse including recruitment procedure and administrating it can cost thousands of dollars in United Kingdom. It also requires a substantial amount of start-up cost and risk whether or not the space is fully occupied. There are many UK fulfilment services that become known as specialist in UK and they provide a flawless service from order processing and management of inventory through to pick, pack and delivery.

Their marketable experience underpins these UK fulfilment services philosophies to ecommerce clients who have taken the major decision to outsource their web order fulfilment and warehousing. They import order files to their system and send them as attached file or document. They design their e com site and also integrate order and inventory.
