Article Side
Understand How Business and Shopping Directory Work by Elissa Joyce

Article published on January 11th 2012 | Business

Before every time we need something, supermarkets and neighborhood stores are the ones we commonly go when we want to purchase our wanted items. If we need services, the usual thing we look at is our printed phonebooks. Although these have been effective in the past to buy the things and get the services that we need, the modern age has made them a bit obsolete. The advancement of computer technology and the improvement in internet speed have given way to an electronic place and meet the changing demands of the people. Our traditional directory has never been the same ever since.

The Humble Beginning Online

Online shopping directory has become very famous in the past recent years because most of our needs are already global. Some of our wanted items can only be found from the other side of the world. Finding it with the traditional phone is no longer applicable since most yellow pages only cater local stores. For example, you may need a spare part for your automobile but the item is not available in your country; through online directory, you can order the part on the internet to a country where it is available.

Online directories have started its existence because most of the information in a printed phonebook is not updated and some businesses do either no longer existing or have an invalid phone number, plus the fact that they have to pay for them to be included in the listings. On the other hand, online directories offer their listings for free, unless the company want a priority place where they will be one of the first to be displayed when a possible customer do a search. Directories can be classified according to their use such as business, shopping, and residential (known as the white pages)

Types of Online Directories

A shopping directory is a type of online directory which has a yellow page format and focuses in selling product or services. If you are looking for an instructor for your piano lesson or probably you want to buy flowers for your special someone, this kind of directory is the one you need. For business directory, its primary aim is to help business in their daily operation like finding wholesalers for their office supplies, help them in their annual taxation, get insurance for their assets, help them in investing their money, and many more. Residential directory or white pages are those who are the contact information of a particular person like real name, address, and contact number.

There are several websites on the internet offering online directory; the best example is KwikGoblin. This particular website does not only give business directory services to people but also has shopping listings for normal customers. In looking for online directories on the internet, you can utilize the power of the search engines. Most of the searches you want will usually pops out on your screen Also, make sure that you are dealing with a true website. Remember there are many scammers online and they are just waiting for you to make a mistake.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/understand-how-business-and-shopping-directory-work.htm - Article Side

Elissa Joyce - About Author:

If you are looking for a reliable a shopping directory, you can try to visit KwikGoblin. They have significant collections of sellers and service providers. You can reach them at kwikgoblin.com

Article Keywords:
KwikGoblin,Shopping Directory,Business Directory

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!