Intellectual property law firm denotes to the firm governing all kinds of intellectual property cases such as patents, copyright and others. Usually, intellectual property is everything that human mind creates new and unique. With the ever growing market, the intellectual properties are also increasing in market and making significant impact on the business as well as individuals.

Types of IP:

The acronym of intellectual property is IP which consists of varieties of Intellectual properties. The intellectual property law firm could be specialized in one or all of the IPs.

* Patent – When a person invents something new machine, process or device is called as the patent and he/she can protect his/her invention by filing the patent right in respective authority. Usually, the United States Patent and Trademark Office provides the patent right to the inventors exclusively.

The law firm specialized in patent section must have experienced and knowledgeable lawyers in different technical fields so attorney can patent invention of their clients in different industries

* Trademark – Trademarks refers to the picture, logo, and brand name of the company. If you have any unique trademark of your company, you can protect it by applying for the trademark rights. However, using the trademark is also the determinant of trademark rights to the user.

* Copyright – Whenever people creates something unique and attach their authorship in that with some tangible form, it automatically fall under the ambit of copyright law. The person own the copyright work is exclusively entitled to make use of that copyrighted items, distribute and generate profit from that. However, for making it safer and prevent unauthorized use, register it with the copyright law.

* Trade secrets - In some cases, few businesses have the most vital assets like their unique way of conducting operations. These kinds of ways are called trade secrets that could be any pattern, operation, design or formula of a business through that business is making profit or taking economic advantage. Like the other IPs, the intellectual property law firm specialized in trade secrets will advice their clients to secure their secrets from the unauthorized access.

Expertise:

The attorneys of a law firm may have expertise in specific field of law such as litigation or transactional.

* Transactional attorney – These lawyers are specialized in the activities of assisting their clients in creating and securing the IPs. They advice their clients how to proceed with the intellectual property rights whether the creation is done by the employees or contract workers. They keep monitoring the work of new creation and perform all legal activities to protect it under the specific law.

* Litigation attorney – The litigation lawyers are the people who have expertise filing lawsuit or responding to the lawsuits. Whenever you want to file a lawsuit against someone who just engages in IP infringement, you need to hire an experienced litigation attorney. Usually, the intellectual property law firms include the attorneys having expertise in both sections or in any one of them.
