After being involved in an accident caused by the negligence of another person, many people living in Toronto hire a Toronto injury lawyer to represent them. It isn't until after the lawyer's been hired that they realize they really don't know a lot about what a personal injury lawyer actually does. Since you want to be able to help your Toronto injury lawyer do the best job that they can for you, you should know what it is that a personal injury lawyer does. Here is a list of what all Toronto personal injury lawyers do:

1. Interview the victim -- the first thing a personal injury lawyer does is to sit down and have an in depth conversation with the victim to make sure that they have all of the facts about the case. It is very important to know all of the information as accurately as possible before they proceed with the case.
2. Determine if the victim has a case -- regardless of what they may believe, the victim has to have a case strong enough to stand up in court. If the case isn't solid enough, it doesn't matter if they are right, or how badly injured they are, the victim will almost certainly lose.
3. Advise victim -- a good Toronto injury lawyer will be upfront with the victim and tell them if they honestly believe they have a case or not. Then they will advise them on what legal steps they should take next.
4. File a claim -- once it's been determined that the victim wants to proceed, the Toronto personal injury lawyer can begin working on the preparations to file a claim for the victim to take the defendant to court. It is the lawyer's responsibility to get the necessary paperwork filed in time so that no deadlines are missed. The faster they are at doing this, the faster the case can go ahead.
5. Advocate for the victim -- while the trial is going on, it is the attorney's duty to stand up for the victim and defend their right to be compensated for not just the physical injuries but also the mental stress they have been suffering. In the case of a settlement the Toronto personal injury lawyer will negotiate until they feel that their client has been properly compensated for medical costs, lost wages, etc.
6. Take care of settlement -- Lastly, the Toronto personal injury lawyer will distribute the settlement amount to the victim. If they are truly a good lawyer they won't ask you to pay them until they won the case.

These are some of the things that you, the client have every right to expect your Toronto injury lawyer to do for you. If they fail to perform their obligations then you must insist that they do so. That's what they are being paid for.
