Why Do Businesses Print Envelopes by Lester Cliff

Article published on January 25th 2012 | Business

Every office needs something handy to keep objects like, letters, brochures, cards etc. This purpose is perfectly served by business envelopes. They are containers usually made of cardboard or paper. In the early days there were only three kinds of envelopes: the diamond, the short-arm cross and the kite. Envelope was used for posting letters and for posting invitations to relatives. But today, they serve a lot more purposes.

Businesses do not want to lose a single opportunity to attract its customers. Every company tries to make as many permanent customers as they can. Plus promotion of a product is also the main thing a company wants to achieve. Thus business envelope printing is one good way of reaching out to your customers. Businesses can utilize customized printed Envelopes for the promotion of their products and services.

The printed envelopes can be used for a lot of purposes. They do not only promote a product but with other information printed on them, they can be helpful in a numerous ways. Company information logo, brand name or any other promotional graphics and images can be printed on Full color envelopes printing, for the promotion of existing products/ packages, and services of the business in question. Such envelopes are used for posting bills, letters, brochures, flyers, samples, greeting cards and other similar materials to existing and new customers.

There are a number of types of envelopes used in the business world today. Standard Mailing Envelopes, Catalog Open End Style, Booklet Open Side Style, Window Envelopes, Remittance Large Flap Envelopes, Self Seal Envelopes, Jumbo Size Extra Large Envelopes, printed envelopes, Small Coin Style Business Envelopes and Envelopes with a Clasp Closure are some of the most commonly used envelopes.

There are a lot of styles, sizes, designs and shapes available in the market for envelopes. It can be said that the most common business envelope is the #10 envelope. It is also called the "legal envelope". Basically printing envelopes are used to promote business identity and also to increase the sales of the business.

Normally companies prefer using their own offset or laser printers for the stationery items printing or custom envelop printing. But this approach is only economical is the company is not large in size. But when a company has grown, it is always better to opt for a commercial printing service. The professional printing companies manufacture the print envelope at a competitive rate and in good time. Other than that commercial custom envelop manufacturers are professionals in their designs and can produce superior quality brilliantly designed customized envelopes with a much less cost and time period. Methods like Full Color CMYK/PMS printing process are used to provide companies with optimum quality product in supple costs. These printing processes offer almost all the commonly used colors and are cost effective too.

Therefore it can be concluded that envelopes can be used for multiple purposes. It is always better to get the envelopes printed in high quality with excellent designs and outlook.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/why-do-businesses-print-envelopes.htm - Article Side

Lester Cliff - About Author:
Basically a printing envelopes are used to promote business identity and also to increase the sales of the business. Company information logo, brand name or any other promotional graphics and images can be printed on Full color a envelopes printing.

Article Keywords:
envelope printing, envelopes printing, printed envelopes, printing envelopes, print envelope

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!