Why Members are Not Bothered by Wholesaledeals Scam Rumors by Brad Smith

Article published on December 21st 2011 | Business

You might have come across wholesaledeals scam reports if you are an active online buyer or seller. There are some mischievous elements working overtime to create doubts in the minds of new and start-up online e-commerce companies about wholesaledeals. However, they have not been able to do dent the immense faith that subscribers and members have in the largest online wholesale and dropship directory in the UK.

Wholesaledeals scam news has been making the rounds on a few online forums and trade review portals. The reports accuse wholesaledeals of scams that are repeated ad infinitum but without any substantiation. Traders have been trying to draw the attention of these reports to administrators, asking for evidence in the form of irrefutable proof that such scams indeed have been perpetuated. However, no proof of these so-called wholesaledeals scams is forthcoming for the simple reason that such proof simply does not exist.

â€¢ The Rumor Mongers Are Themselves Tainted

The fact remains that those who float these rumors are scammers themselves whose acts of cheating and deceit have been roundly exposed several times in the past. They have been using every dirty trick in the book to trap newcomers and amateur traders by exploiting their ignorance of the trade.

Wholesaledeals is fast becoming the preferred destination of the UK-based online trading community because they help traders and buyers enjoy a trading experience that they simply cannot have on any other online trade directory. As a trade buyer, you can buy wholesale and dropship products at margins ranging from 45 to 95 percent. Whatâ€™s more, these deals come with the assurance that they will sell quickly and in large quantities on eBay and Amazon at fantastic profits. You simply donâ€™t have to fear about a wholesaledeals scam here because every deal is guaranteed for performance, or you get your money back.

â€¢ Convenient Subscription Plans for UK and International Traders

There are three easy-to-use subscriptions available for trade buyers. The Deals Database gives you access to more than 12,000 live wholesale and dropship deals of established and authentic brands with an average markup of 200 to 300 percent. The deal starts at just Â£14.99 per month, while the annual membership costs just Â£79.99.

The Suppliers Database lets you access the entire database of verified wholesalers, dropshippers, distributors, and manufacturers from the UK, the U.S., and the EU. All the suppliers listed on this extensive list are individually verified for their legitimacy and are established businesses, so you wonâ€™t have to worry about dealing with them. The subscription starts at a mere Â£20 per month, while the annual membership is all yours at Â£140, giving you a fantastic savings of Â£100. It is clear from these facts that wholesaledeals scam rumors donâ€™t really add up to anything.

The Combo Database is a well-designed subscription plan that combines the best of both subscriptions and is available for Â£24.99 per month. You can get access to all verified suppliers and deals database benefits. You can be the first to know about the deals through their multiple daily updates. Fast premium support promises enhance your e-commerce business and make trading online an enjoyable and profitable experience.
