Article Side

Why opt for side hinged garage doors

by Ashish Pandey

Article published on February 1st 2012 | Business

As far as choosing the best garage doors is concerned, many people believe that there is just a single kind of door that one can have. But the best part is that there are a number of garage doors that are available in the market to select from. Not just can you easily elect the finish and color of the garage, you can even choose the door for it, the way it will operate and its fit.

For the older homes with owners wishing to maintain traditional look, side hinged garage doors are the best option. When you choose to go with the steel side hinged doors, ensure that they are made from the quality galvanized steel with a proper textured powder coat finishing. Also, these types of doors are available in a variety of colors so that you can choose the best as per your tastes or requirements.

The side hinged garage doors are simple to open and close as well due to the fact that their overall weight is basically carried by its hinge. This simply means that the door in proper condition requires no effort at all for easy opening and closing.

Unlike other types of garage doors, the side hinged ones allow just a single door to get opened while the other remains closed. This type of a door is thus perfect for the human only entry. These doors further remain to be a great way to get into and out of the garage with ease thus making it secure. The contemporary hinged doors for the garage are also available in different materials, finishes and panels so that they look attractive and appealing.

This type of a door is even easy to repair and maintain. Though the timber panels require some painting or using some preservative, they can indeed last for a lifetime. The rusted or broken hinges of these doors can also be replaced and the damaged panels can be easily repaired and restored.

Almost all side hinged garage doors are the open out types, thereby helping you to preserve the interior space. While such doors are available in pairs, there are even the individual doors that are available these days. This in turn adds to overall flexibility of the door and thus allows them to serve as center or off center split.

The hinged doors for garages are even featured with traditional and appealing visual appeal and that they are manufactured from the wood makes them all the more eco friendly and attractive. The doors can further be finished with grain of wood, made from the galvanized steel, UPVC or painted.

The great part to note about such doors that work on the hinges is that they can be adapted to the electric operation with ease. This is so because there is less weight to carry at the time of motorized transition. Thus the only case where this is not a possibility is in the high winds situation. So, opt for the side hinged garage doors and enjoy.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/why-opt-for-side-hinged-garage-doors.htm - Article Side

Ashish Pandey - About Author:
a Side hinged garage doors are available in wide varieties these days. a Selectgaragedoors.co.uk is a great place where you can get such doors for your garage.

Article Keywords:
Side hinged garage doors, electgaragedoors

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!