So itâ€™s the year 2012. You and your better half have been planning to tie the knot sometime this year. Some couples find it hard to set their wedding budget. Here are some tips which may help you do this effectively.

Make a list, and check it twice! To be able to stick to your budget, enumerate the details and the things you need to purchase or rent so you would know where youâ€™re spending your money on. Create a budget for everything including wedding favors, bouquet, caterer, invitations, etc. Create an itinerary so you will be able to keep track of everything.

Bring the dream wedding down to reality. You want your wedding to be as gorgeous as you imagined it to be. But your vision must go well with your budget. After foreseeing your perfect wedding, nowâ€™s the time to look for supplies. You can try to look for less expensive alternatives so you can have your ideal wedding without spending too much.

Your wedding day timeline matters. It is always better to plan ahead rather than cram and miss on some important details. Creating a timeline gives you an overview of the day. â€œWhat time should I start my wedding? What time should I get ready? What time should people arrive at the wedding venue and at the reception?â€• Consider these important questions to help you make your wedding day a smooth one.

Check your itinerary every now and then. You might realize that there are some things on the new wedding checklist that arenâ€™t on the initial list. Re-evaluate your list regularly to avoid going over your budget.

If the budgetâ€™s still not enough, look for other sources of funds. Reasonably, some couples resort to lending money from banks and other financial institutions. If you wish to do the same, you can avoid debt issues by looking for institutions with low interest rates. And because youâ€™re one lucky bride/groom, you stumbled upon an online community that offers financial products, such as loans, at just the right interest rate.
