Named after James Zadroga, a courageous officer of the New York City Police Department (NYPD), this act was aimed at providing both medical care and financial aid to thousands of brave hearts like him, who had lost their good health and even lives as a ill-fated consequence of participating in the relief and rescue operations of the 9/11 WTC attack.

Infact, the act allows for all living people, suffering from any 9/11 related health conditions, to receive some special compensatory privileges. These benefits include both health care as well as financial aid. Also, apart from those who contributed in the rescue operations, the residents of the World Trade Center area, as well as students attending school and people employed in the area during the 9/11 terrorist attack, are also provided for under this program with proper health monitoring and medical care for any and all 9/11 related health conditions. However, to be granted the same, the sufferers are required to prove the health or mental loss caused to them due to 9/11 World Trade Centre Attack. And only a veteran Zadroga attorney can help a victim prove his case and get his rightful dues, without the unnecessary hassles.
