Get wings by enrolling for the most comprehensive training in helicopter by James

Article published on February 22nd 2012 | Career

You must have been awed by the experience of your first flight with your parents. Though this was a small distance one, the breathtaking view of the ground below, the serpentine ribbon like rivers, the vanishing localities, all left a lasting impression in your young mind. However, you were completely captivated by the dignified personality of the pilot of the plane. You saw a glimpse of him after the flight and that was enough for you to decide on your future profession.

However, in due casourse you selected a more mundane career thought the desire to fly has always been there. Now that you are well settled in life you want to give your wings to your passion. You think it should never be easy, balancing a responsible career, discharging the responsibilities of a family person and the demands of the flight training.

If the thought of this daunting task of juggling between home and office, office and institute, institute and home haunted you then here is a Helicopter Flight School that is worth considering. The highly trained and experienced flight instructors will mentor you and train you to the nuances of helicopter aviation. Theyâ€™ll also give you practical tips which will be very helpful during the independent flights you undertake.

Southern California Helicopters offers its students the option of choosing their own time of convenience.Among helicopters, there are Robinson R22, Schweizer 300 as well as Robinson R44. If you have your prior commitments, then this Helicopter training institute will create a training schedule around that. You were highly impressed by the smart behavior of the young airhostess and the stewards. For many a days later you tried to imitate their walking, talking and smiling style! You could not have enough of the experience.

It is only with the schedule, this Helicopter Flight School wants to help you with the convenient locations as well. It has its two very conveniently located facilities. One is the Chino Airport in Chino, California, the other at Mercury Sky Harbor FBO at the Long Beach Airport. The facility at Chino Airport helps Southern California Helicopters to utilize seven airports within 25 miles. This allows the institute to save a considerable flying time.

The weather of Southern California is such that it provides almost round the year flying condition. It also offers a wide diversity in terms of terrain. Deserts, mountains and coastlines all can be covered in one flight.

There are different kinds of courses of offer. You can chose from Instrument Pilot Helicopter, Fixed wing courses, Certified Flight instructor, Commercial Pilot helicopter etc.

Southern Helicopters School has a fleet of modern and well maintained aircraft to train its students. Youâ€™ll get the chance of flying highly sophisticated aircrafts like Socata TB-9, Cessna 172S of the G1000 series.

You may not have any previous flight training experience but that does not deter you from taking up this course and be an amateur or even a full-fledged professional pilot. So, no stone unturned to make you a competent and safe pilot.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/career-articles/get-wings-by-enrolling-for-the-most-comprehensive-

James - About Author:
Southern California Helicopters is a a flight training School with a difference. This a Helicopter Flight School which utilizes massive infrastructure and has very well trained staff, is also is very focused towards its students. It has the provision of creating a personalized schedule for the a Helicopter training.

Article Keywords:
Flight Training, Helicopter training, Helicopter Flight School

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!