Article published on December 20th 2011 | Clothing

Opting for the fabulous prom dresses begins with taking your body shape into consideration. In a certain way, a flattering one fit will elevate your prom night to a red carpet hit. Especially, you are always focusing your attention on the fashion trend and look forward to creating a dramatic look like a celebrity walking in the red carpet. It is wise to make sure your attire flatters your well from any angle. After all, a lesson from the red carpet, the camera will be on you from every direction.

It is wise to ensure the style could show off your best features and complement every angle of your figure including front, back as well as the sides. Video will record dance floor movement so that the way you walk in your prom gown is also the key. The following content will tell you how to steal the spotlight in your favorite outfit in terms of the inspired body shapes. I believe that you might do enough research about the stunning styles of the celebrities listed in your body shape type category. The premise is that you have learned about your figure and the figure of some celebrity is similar to yours. Otherwise, it is all in vain. Now, it is time to choose the fitted body shape.

Hourglass

A number of famous celebrities like Kim Kardashian, Beyonce Knowles, etc have got the perfect curves. If you are lucky to feature such figure, there is no doubt that almost any style of prom dress will look great on you. Of course, it is worth noting that you had better stay away from the design like ball gown or the style with empire waist that will conceal your beauty, surely.

Slender

It is easy to find that the Gwyneth Paltrow and Nicole Richie own the enviable figure. I believe that most females dream of having the slim figures. Similarly, almost any style could be landed on the list of your best choices. Of course, there is a key that you should give up your mind to go for the off-the-shoulder pattern when your collarbone is too bony.

As a matter of fact, you have got a wide range of options of the celebrity inspired styles of attires for prom. Keep in mind that the key is your figure that almost determines your choice in addition, pay attention to your skin tone. Although the skin tone matches the complexion of the star well, it doesnâ€™t mean that it is your best choice. So, it is wise to make sure it is flattering for you. Keep the mentioned tips in mind; I believe that you are destined to be the most outstanding star in the perfect expensive prom gowns.
