Getting Your Dance Costumes Right by Jessie

Article published on May 11th 2012 | Clothing

Your next performance is round the corner? You must be on your toes- literally, to find the right dance costumes. Anyone who has had even little experience with dance shows or competitions must know that how critically important are dance dresses during the final performance. If you are a dance teacher who has to arrange dance dresses for the entire team, you have even a harder job. With a number of students in the team and all being of different sizes and shapes can be potentially problematic if you have to decide on the dance costumes.

Dances for which one can use leotards are still easy to take care of as leotards are a wonderful option for dancers with a body of any shape or size. For the rest, one has to work over things and come up with something that suits the entire team and the individual dancers too. Along with the design and the style, the designer also has to take care of the comfort of the children. It is imperative that the dance costumes are comfortable. Only then would the dancer be able to perform to the best of his or her capabilities.

The dance costumes that are decided for the final performance should be glamorous enough and should also be in accordance with the theme of the performance. It is important that the costumes chosen should suit the entire team and the overall effect on the stage should be pleasing. The colors that you use for the costumes should be bright and lively but first, they should be complimentary to the theme of the performance- the music, the choreography etc. The dance costumes should also reflect appropriately the kind of dance that is being performed. Many dances have their own specific requirements for dance costumes and dance shoes.

The best is to have comfortable costumes that the kids can easily fit in their dance bags. But at times, you need more elaborate dance dresses- sometimes for the main dancers and sometimes for the entire dance team. But great care should be taken that for the fancy costumes you donâ€™t have to compromise on the comfort of the dancers. They should still be able to move around flexibly in the dance costumes. It is bet to have the do a number of rehearsals in the same costumes so that there are no problems on the final day of the performance or the competition.
