Linen is a textile which is made from the natural fibers of the flax plant. Anything natural is always soothing to the senses and the same can be said about linen. As a fabric, it is very light and breezy. Those who stay in countries where the climate is hot and humid, find solace in anything that is made of linen. Clothes, kitchen cloths and beddings, almost everything is made of linen, and not without a reason. Not only is it affordable, but it withstands daily wear and tear very well. Bed sheets made of linen, hence are of a great advantage.

To start with, linen is soft and smooth to the touch. After a hard day at work, when you want to come and rest on something very comfortable, you will find the touch of linen on your skin very satisfactory indeed. The new age, crease free linen are still softer, though the price can go up a few notches if one opts for that variety.

Again, bed linen sheets are items that can easily get stained. You might be having a lovely time watching TV in bed when you unwittingly spill the ketchup. Or your neighbor's kid just might soil it with his muddy feet. In that case, it has to withstand a high degree of scrubbing and harsh detergents to get rid of the stains. And linen fabric comes away with flying colors. Not only does it does not hold on to stains for long, but any amount of washing will still keep it in good shape. A good starching and ironing after that, and your bed sheet will be as good as new.

Linen can lend itself beautifully to any kind of decoration. It can be embroidered intricately or dyed in pastel shades. There is no reason to think that linen bed sheets will not look as stately beside a satin be cover. With the right choice of colors and by coordinating the room décor with it, you can achieve an enviable look for your bedroom which can be stylish and homely at the same time. While drying them, take care to hang them in the shade, and your linen bed sheets will be good to go for quite a few years.

So if you have been thinking of buying new bed cloths and bed sheets, you should definitely invest in good linen ones. You will love its feel on your bed.
