They're very large with distinctive designs and vibrant colors. Even though Russia is not known throughout the world for fashion, this piece of clothing has become a favorite among westerners as well as all women throughout the world. In fact, the designs are in the such demand, that you will often find knockoffs of this piece of clothing everywhere.

How are they made today?

Interestingly, every design is first created by a group of artists and they need to be approved by the business's art council. The experts that make up the council are some of the top artists from the Moscow Folk Art Council as well as the region's Ministry of Culture. Each step goes through an approval process so there is always a top product.

Each piece is woven from only the finest fleece by the company's weavers. Afterthe design is approved, the perfect colors are created and tested on many test pieces to make it flawless before production. Even though they use automated machines in the factory, they still hand tie a fringe on each completed piece to give it a handmade feel.

In today's world the Russian shawl has been created and fabricated to accentuate any woman's wardrobe. The softness and quality of each piece is unsurpassed in beauty.

The Pavlovsky Posad Wool style for example is exclusively manufactured at the Posad factory just outside of Moscow. In fact, this factory that has been around since 1812.

How cn you wear this kind of clothing?

With the large assortment of so many designs and fabulous colors, the pieces can be worn around the waist, shoulders and even as head gear. There are even women who wear more than one and it's still very fashionable. Not only is there wool, but goat down is also used to give its softness, lightness and comfort. The designs today maintain the costume of the traditional peasant in Russian history.

There are many imitations on the market, so it is important that you look for a retailer that sells an authentic Russian shawl. Fortunately, there are many opportunities to find original pieces by authorized retailers online. However, you still need to be very careful and do your research to make sure that you're buying the real deal. You might not care if you have an original from Russia, but for those that want only the best in design, quality and craftsmanship, you should make sure it's an original.

To conclude, a Russian shawl has always been a wonderful and comfortable addition to a woman's wardrobe. Today, with this piece of clothing becoming a high fashion statement, it just makes sense to buy one that comes from Russia so you can enjoy wearing it on any occasion.
